IN NO MOOD TO COMPROMISE

ENGLAND WANTS FULLEST
REPARATION.

Temper of the British People and Government Impatient
Over the Russian Outrage—Awaiting Report.

NO CHANCE FOR COMPROMISE.
London, Oct. 25.—In the note dispatched to St. Petersburg yesterday the British government put forward certain definite demands in language which it is understood leaves little opening for any suggestion of compromise apologies for the action of the Russian squadron and full compensation for the sufferers; that a searching inquiry shall be instituted with all despatch and under conditions that appropriate action shall follow the result of the investigation. In other words that the responsibility shall be fixed and punishments meted out to the offenders, whoever they may be.

The Russian ambassador called on Secretary Lansdowne this morning and expressed in most earnest and unreserved fashion his personal regret at the attack on the liners.

RUSSIA'S NOTE.
St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—Foreign Minister Lansdowne upon his arrival from visiting Emperor Nicholas at Tsarskoe Selo this afternoon drove direct to the British embassy, where he conveyed to Ambassador Hardinge on behalf of the emperor a message for communication to King Edward and the British government, expressing the emperor's profound regret at the news of the North Sea incident and stating that the emperor had not yet received a report from his officers on the subject, but asking the British ambassador, nevertheless, to convey assurance that the fullest reparation would be made to the families of the sufferers. Later the ambassador went to the foreign office and formally presented a copy of his instructions. The note is couched in a moderate but firm tone. The note emphasizes the act as inhuman, unjustifiable and deliberate, but makes no direct demands, reserving them pending receipt of Russia's explanation. Neither does it place time limit upon the response.

DELAYS.
London, Oct. 25.—Inevitable delays of diplomatic procedure appear to retard complete and satisfactory settlement of the acute difference between Great Britain and Russia arising from the North Sea incident. King Edward has received a cablegram from Emperor Nicholas expressing deep regret and practically acknowledging that Great Britain's preemptory note will meet with a reply conceding every demand for the act of aggression against the British flag, compensation for the sufferers and punishment of the officers responsible for that is conceded to have been a great blunder and the Russian ambassador to England has expressed to Lansdowne his sorrow and sympathy.

These developments which came late have allayed to some extent the deep resentment in our minds. The admiralty gave evidence of its appreciation of the necessity of proving that it is prepared actively to support the position of Great Britain and fulfill the expectations of the world when it issued a statement that orders for mutual support and cooperation were issued to the channel, home and Mediterranean fleets.

The day has been one of the busiest in recent years in diplomatic circles here. The Russian ambassador was an early caller at the Lansdowne house and had a long interview with him, after which the foreign minister drove to Downing street and conferred with Balfour and others and the rest of the day was occupied with a mass of matters pertaining to the affair. Almost momentarily the public expected some public announcement of an official nature, but this evening the foreign office announced no further statement would be issued to night.

The Russian ambassador was occupied until late to night with a mass of cipher dispatches and it was announced at the embassy that it would be physically impossible to prepare a formal reply on such a short time.

While Great Britain is stirred to its depths there has not been the slightest evidence of a repetition of the rowdism of last night, which is condemned on all sides. Bentinck himself referred to the incident of last night as trivial and did not appear to consider it.

Newspaper action of the situation was evidenced when King Edward appeared in public today. He was greeted with more than usual enthusiasm on account of the decided tone of the telegram to the mayor of Hull on Monday.

The report of Thomas Carr, "admiral" of the North Sea fishing fleet, dated Oct. 22, was received to night. It is a plain sailor's yarn of the occurrence and does not differ from the facts already made public. The statement was sent to Foreign Minister Lansdowne to night.

Papers display great impatience over the delay of the Russian government in according satisfaction of the affair. They demand the Baltic fleet must be stopped in its irresponsible career, for otherwise there is no safety for the shipping of any nationality.

CLOSING SESSION.

End of the Triennial Conference of the Episcopal Church—
What was Done.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The triennial general conference of the Episcopal church was ended late today with a public service in Trinity church. From the pulpit Bishop Potter, of New York, read a pastoral letter addressed to the church at large. The communication, which consisted of more than three thousand words, considered the problems now before the church, regarding divorce, the pastoral letter also the ease with which the marriage relation may be taken on and put off, is a menace to American civilization, and possibly the greatest peril to which Christians are yet exposed to. The letter made a plea for the permanency and security of the family. It also discussed the negro question, stating that the church was taking steps to correct the situation as far as possible. Other pressing questions were dealt with.

Little business of importance was transacted at the final business sessions. A resolution permitting foreign congregations now in communication with the church to use forms of service in their own language was adopted after a sharp contest. The legislation was enacted specifically for the benefit of Swedish congregations in Minnesota.

The chief feature of the three weeks' convention was the discussion of amendments bearing on marriage and divorce. Altogether a majority favored a canon which would prohibit the marriage of any divorced person, but the system of voting by dioceses enabled the opposition of the proposed amendment to win in that body. After much discussion a compromise was arranged with the bishops whereby innocent persons in divorce for infidelity is permitted to remarry one year after the divorce is issued, but restrictions are so stringent that it becomes exceedingly difficult for such marriages to be solemnized. The convention also decided to establish a course of review, to which appeals to a diocesan trial can be taken. It perfected such arrangements that missionary work of the church be carried on with great vigor and appointment of a commission to investigate the negro problem in the south. Among other actions taken was the decision not to change the name of the church at this time, nor to act on the proposition to provide with a "primate" of the head of the church. The next convention will be held in Richmond, Va., in 1907.

INVITATION DISPATCHED.
Washington, Oct. 25.—Acting Secretary of State Adee to day dispatched the invitation of the president to the signatory powers of the original League treaty, to come together again for the purpose of broadening and strengthening the original convention and especially consider means to further ameliorate the horrors of modern warfare.

A PERILOUS VOYAGE

An Airship Ascends from the World's Fair Grounds and Lands Ten Miles Away

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—An aeronaut in the airship of T. C. Baldwin, of Los Angeles, Calif., caused intense excitement at the world's fair to day by suddenly appearing over the transportation building at a height of about 1,000 feet.

Ray Kavenshue of Toledo, made the ascent from the world's fair and landed near Calhoun, Ill., nearly ten miles away. Clinging to the framework of the car, his precarious foot held on from tube that forms one side of the base of the triangular network of the supports and ribs of the airship. Body he directed the movements of the machine and maneuvered in circles and against the wind high over the exhibit, palace of the exposition, before the accident to the motor which rendered the propellers useless and entangled the command of the airship. Notwithstanding the breaking of the motor he did not lose complete control of the machine, but with the momentum given by the wind was enabled to steer the machine in a degree that varied several points in each direction from the trend of the wind, and land at a point of his own selection.

STANDARD OIL MAKES DENIAL

ENGAGES IN NO OUTSIDE BUSINESS.

Statement from Counsel in Regard to Rumors the Company is Concerned in all Kinds of Manipulation.

New York, Oct. 25.—S. T. Dodd, of the counsel for the Standard Oil company, authorized the following statement:

"In view of the many false and misleading statements from various sources, the directors of the Standard Oil company deem it advisable to state to the company's shareholders and the public that neither at this or any time has the Standard Oil company or any of its constituent companies been interested in any business not directly related with and necessary to the petroleum trade. It would be almost impossible to designate in this denial the different classes of business with which irresponsible parties have coupled the Standard Oil company's name, but it may not be amiss to specify copper, steel, banks, railroads and gas (other than natural gas) as being most prominently mentioned. With none of these concerns has the Standard Oil company been in any time connected. Individual members of the Standard Oil company have been and are interested as individuals in various enterprises, but this is not the business of the Standard Oil company, which is all alone, unaffected by other interests in which the stockholders may invest. Neither is it true that the Standard Oil company, John D. Rockefeller or any officer of the Standard Oil company has taken part in securing the nominations of any candidates for office, as is so positively stated. Furthermore, it is entirely untrue that there is any 'Standard Oil party' banded together for discussion in stocks as is so commonly charged. The name of the Standard Oil company is frequently used by designing persons in manipulation of the stock market but its use is unwarranted.

The Standard Oil company departs from its usual custom in making this denial for the reason the statements made at this time by newspapers, magazines and nation at newspaper speakers appear to be unwarranted and may to a great extent mislead the public.

UNFAIR TREATMENT

Independent Coal Mine Owner
Tells of his Dealings with the Railroads.

New York, Oct. 25.—John C. Haddock, an independent coal-mine owner and operator, testifying to day before the interstate commerce committee on commerce, in which Randolph Hurst, against the coal carrying railroads said that as a result of tariff discrimination, his company suffered a loss of more than $800,000 in less than eight years. This loss meant the difference between solvency and insolvency, and his company at the time had a reputation of high standard, which he jealously guarded, as a result of alleged discrimination is now in the hands of the trustees.

Haddock said he had persistently complained to the management of the Lacawanna Western company and had been met by the proposition that he turn his property over to the railroad. This he had declined to do so. In the end there was a compromise by which he received $150,000 from the Lacawanna company in settlement of his claim for $300,000. Haddock also said that the Lacawanna company would not furnish a sufficient number of cars to meet the output of his mine during the anthracite coal strike, and that they caused to be removed spur tracks into the yards of dealers in New York and Cortland, N. Y., who purchased coal from his company. When Haddock had completed his testimony counsel announced that complainant would rest his case.

BENEFICIARIES OF TRUSTS

KNOX ANSWERS PARKER'S SPEECH.

Shows Up the Democratic Managers—Bryan in Indiana—Fairbanks Ends his Michigan Canvass—Now to Illinois.

KNOX ANSWERS.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Senator Knox, former attorney general, to night issued a statement in answer to Parker's speech on trusts and Cleveland's remarks on the same. Knox quotes remarks by both and considers them contradictory. Considering Parker's statement concerning campaign contributions by great corporations, Knox declared: "Parker is describing precisely and exactly the sources which gave Tammany hall its strength and the cutting off of which in the present campaign would remove every chance of his carrying New York state. There is not an honest man in political life who does not know that this is the case and know that Parker is now seeking the beneficiary of every method which the affects to denounce."

Referring to Parker's declaration that contributions by corporations and trusts mean corruption and that a corporation making such contribution expects through its control of public offices executive legislation to do something of benefit instead of doing something to its injury, Knox expressed surprise that Parker should have the temerity to say this when his own intimate associates and supporters—the men who conducted his campaign for the nomination and who are now conducting the campaign for his election—represent these very corporations. He affects to denounce the political strength for contributions they have received from them in the past and expects to receive from them in the future.

In this connection Knox names several leaders, including Belmont, Taggart and Hill, who, he said, "one and all owe their whole power in politics to the intimate connection they have established between the management of corporations and the management of public business."

Continuing he declared: "Parker was created by them and would not have been thought of except for them and has not now any chance of success, save what they give him."

After quoting the Democratic platform declaration on trusts Knox said that a Republican congress at the request of President Roosevelt has just passed as drastic an act as it is possible to prepare, striking at all rebates and discriminations and conferring upon United States courts to restrain and take action thereon.

BRYAN.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 25.—Wm. J. Bryan had a busy day in Indiana to day. He spoke to large crowds at Fort Wayne, Kendallville, Goshen, North Manchester, Ellettsville, Rochester and Plymouth. At Plymouth, which Bryan declared to be in strong silver and Bryan county, he said: "It is pointed out our platform is not what I would like to see it. I share the disappointment with you, but how can we advance any reform which are dear to us by assisting in the election of a Republican candidate. If our candidate does not represent all we desire in the way of reform, the Republican candidate stands for no reform whatever, and we cannot advance bimetalism through the election of Roosevelt nor can we carry out any remedial legislation by such an election. We do not need a large army if we deal with the laboring man as a citizen, patriot and brother, and why should we deal with him as a public enemy in time of peace? Those who labor on the farm and in the factory produce the nation's wealth and in time of war these fight the nation's battles. If the laboring man is willing to stand behind the musket and risk his life in his nation's defense, he ought not to be put at the other end of the musket in time of peace and his wife and children depending on him. If he volunteers when his country needs him, his claims ought not to be ignored when he needs legislation at his country's hands."

In his speech at South Bend to night Bryan spoke of the reforms needed by the government and declared them to be the vital issues of the campaign. He said: "The election of the Democratic ticket will hasten every reform, removing the overshadowing issue. Republican election will not only continue the issue now absorbing attention, but may add new ones now unsuspected."

JUDGE PARKER.

New York, Oct. 25.—Judge Parker was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Edward S. Rapallo at the University club. Most of the guests were from the club. The guests were all prominent New York city lawyers. The dinner was entirely formal and politics were eschewed altogether. A number of the guests are conspicuous in the management of the campaign for Parker. After dinner Judge Parker met a large number of members of the club and then returned to his hotel. The candidate spent the day in his apartments receiving political friends.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 25.—With an immense and enthusiastic meeting in this city to night Senator Fairbanks ended a day's speech making over the southern portion of Michigan. Alden Smith accompanied Fairbanks across the state.

To-morrow will be devoted to Illinois, beginning in the morning with a speech at Decatur. The evening meeting will be at Hannibal, Mo.

He was taken ill yesterday afternoon at his office and his condition was such that the attending physician deemed his removal unwise at that time. This noon Vincent appeared much better and was taken to his home. Soon after reaching home he had a sinking spell and died at 3:25. The recent arrest of his son, Richard Vincent, charged with colonizing was a severe blow to the postmaster, who expressed firm belief in his son's innocence. These troubles, coupled with advancing years (67) played an important part in bringing on the fatal illness.

Free trade would have us acquire the article. Protection demands that we acquire the art.

The Republican party never has to furnish a diagram showing the meaning of its declarations.

The business world of this country can not afford, if it has any regard for its own welfare, even to consider the advisability of changing the present tariff system.

Indiana Democrats are assuring Judge Parker that they are going to support the principles which he shared with them in 1896 and 1900, and that they cannot be weaned from Bryan by a telegram.

It is a notable fact that under the protective tariff system the American producers are to day entering the markets of the world with their products and still maintaining the American standard of wages.

Without mechanical and manufacturing resources, no people can maintain prosperity or independence. Manufactures can only be maintained through the protective system in this country, where the people insist upon a high standard of living, demanding a high wage.

OUR COUNTY TICKET.

Only a short time will elapse before the people of the country will be called on to decide whom they will have for their officers from president down to constable and magistrate. In this county the welfare of the taxpayers will be best subserved by the election of the men named on the Republican ticket.

All the people who know Bert Van Winkle speak of him in the highest terms and he is becoming well known from one end of the county to the other. He is a young man well read in law and has the happy faculty of putting to good use what he knows. He is active and alert and ready always to give reason for his conduct. He should receive a handsome majority at the polls Nov. 8.

Charles L. Hayden has admittedly made one of the best circuit clerks that ever served the county. He is always ready to wait on anybody who calls and no matter how busy he and his assistants are the caller receives prompt and cheerful attention. The office is economically administered and everything is done in the best manner and people don't have to wait for what they want.

It is well to have a doctor for coroner. Not that it is indispensable, but it often saves time and money. Dr. Spencer did admirably when he was in office before and will do so again if favored with a majority of the votes. He is well read, capable, affable to all, upright in his dealings and the man who will well perform the arduous duties of inquiring into the cause of fatalities.

The position of superintendent of schools is one of great importance and should be filled by a man of capability and wide experience. Such a man is J. H. DeLong and the people whom he meets are becoming more and more aware of the fact as they come into contact with him. He is an educated man, well posted in what pertains to the duties of the office and an educator of varied and valuable experience. He will make a good man for the place if the people do their duty by him.

The office of county commissioner is one of the most important in the whole list, for the duties incumbent on the men who hold that position are sometimes such as involve great responsibilities. None are more fitted for such work than George Deitrick, of Concord precinct. Mr. Deitrick is a gentleman of excellent habits and fine education in the practical affairs of life. He has a good knowledge of books and added to that the more important knowledge of practical affairs in every day business life. Making a fine success of his own business he is able to take the people's affairs and do the same with them and if the voters are wise they will elect him.

Mansell Dudley is a young man who has worked his way up through a difficult and has proved himself worthy of the suffrages of the taxpayers. He is a gentleman, well posted in the profession and politics to all whom he meets. He will make a surveyor who will well do his duty and show the people they made no mistake if they choose him at the polls.

COMPLIMENTARY TO JUDGE LAYMAN AND MR. HACKETT.

A Democratic correspondent of the Courier giving an account of the Republican meeting in Nortonville pays the speakers a high compliment when he says that the audience was largely Democratic at the beginning of the meeting and that at its close there were one-half more Democrats present than Republicans. The courtesy shown the speakers by the Democrats in remaining until the close of the meeting was commendable and showed that they were not afraid of hearing something from the other side.

The Courier should be more careful to censor its news items from abroad. In its supplement it had the statement that more than two thousand silk weavers had left France for this country within the past year. It was Republican protection that established silk industries in this country. Before that time in the days of free trade Europe did the manufacturing and this country paid the high prices, while mechanics and laboring men had few of the good things of life; but now that we are doing our manufacturing ourselves we are getting the skilled workmen here and our mechanics and laboring men are enjoying the luxuries of life.

A TRUSTED MESSENGER.

One of the interesting features of Congressional day at the St. Louis fair was the fragment of the famous Plymouth rock which was shown. When it was thought necessary to remove the rock owing to a change in the coast line a fragment broke off and was given to the Chicago Theological seminary. The rock is of a grey granite composition, about sixteen inches long, seven inches wide and four inches high. It is mounted on a flat piece of marble and was placed on a table at the front of the stage during the exercises.

The authorities of the seminary were unwilling to trust the stone to make the journey without a special guard and chose William A. Lippincott for that purpose. He says: "I was regally treated as one of the guests of honor * * * having a Jefferson guard at my beck and call." He later reported his safe return to Chicago.

ANOTHER PARKERISM.

If the Democratic campaign managers don't keep their candidate quiet he will soon be fit more for a kindergarten than the presidency. Here is a clipping from an independent paper, the New York Commercial:

"Judge Parker has admittedly made an admirable record as head of the coast of fund resort in New York state, but as the campaign progresses, it is becoming increasingly evident that he has paid little attention to the workings and history of the federal government. In his tariff speech last Saturday he declared that the tariff question had 'disappeared' so completely as an issue in American politics,' after the enactment of the tariff of 1857, that probably 'it would never have been revived, but for the civil war, which necessitated the raising of a large revenue' and so forth—the result of what necessity 'was the Morrill' tariff? The Morrill tariff was a result of nothing of the kind. It was passed to help out a beggarly national treasury, and it was passed by a senate that was strongly Democratic and by a house of representatives in a minority of the whole; and the act was signed by James Buchanan six weeks before Sumter was fired on. We shall probably learn next from Esopus that it was Andrew Johnson who issued the proclamation of emancipation."

History shows that about one man in a million really ever thinks, and that thinking has never been held in such intense reprobation as to make it an extremely dangerous pastime. A thinker used to be in olden times very lucky if he got off with his life. The best ones as a rule did not. But their thoughts pushed the world forward no matter what was done with their bodies, and as a result, we are less apt to day to emphy, poison, burn at stake or imprison the great thinkers. Though many seem and detect them quite as cordially as we do. Facts are cold stubborn things and no fact was ever colder or harder than that a better understanding of the laws of life is being forced upon the world, and it is quite in accord with the past that the world should accept facts and truths after the most desperate resistance.

NEXT TUESDAY
It Will Be Your Last Chance and
Voters Must Go in Person—
Polls Open till Nine p. m.

Voters are urged to register next Tuesday, if they have not already done so, as it will be the last opportunity before the coming election, and when a name fails to appear on the registry list it causes more or less bother and sometimes trouble. In another column will be noted the polling places for each district in the whole county so that there need be no trouble in attending to the matter. See to it before that time that all your friends are duly notified and it would also be well to consult the polling book, which must be hung in a conspicuous place all the time until next Tuesday, so that it may be seen by any person so desiring, and be sure that your name is on the list and if not to be equally sure to have it there next Tuesday, in case you are a legal voter. At this time voters must go in person, as under no other circumstances can names be added to the list by the judges and clerks.

AT THE GRAND.
The Dodge-Bowman Amusement company gave another very satisfactory performance at the Grand last evening. A society sketch entitled "Matrimonial Bliss," was given as a curtain raiser, which was followed by the animated picture exhibition and a clever bill of specialties by first class artists. A good sized audience was present and the entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed.
The company will conclude their "three nights" stand this evening and a feature of the program will be the "Hatch Dance."

HATCH SIGNS THE BOND.
Mi-o-na, Nature's Cure for Dyspepsia. Costs Nothing if it Fails.

The guarantee given with Mi-o-na is no ordinary promise. It is a guarantee bond signed by your own druggist, a reliable firm right in this town. Read the following guarantee bond and see how simple and plain it is:

GUARANTEE.
We hereby guarantee to refund the money paid for Mi-o-na on return of the empty boxes if the purchaser tells us that it has failed to cure dyspepsia or stomach troubles. This guarantee covers two 50c boxes, or a month's treatment.
(Signed) HATCH.

It does not always happen that two boxes of Mi-o-na will cure a case of stomach trouble that has been present for years, but they will certainly give more than enough benefit to prove that the remedy will cure. In ordinary cases one or two boxes will restore perfect health.

A few doses of Mi-o-na will strengthen the nerves of the stomach so that the appetite will return and you will be started on the right road to health.

Ninety-three per cent. of chronic diseases begin with dyspepsia. Cure the dyspeptic troubles, regulate the digestion and avoid the fate of chronic invalidism.

Remember you run no risk in using Mi-o-na. Hatch warrants it, and it costs you nothing unless it cures.

HOME MARKETS.

Little change is to be noted in general lines. Cooler weather has stimulated fall trade. Of the Chicago market, O. S. Green, with Shannon Bros. & Co., Union Stock Yards, reports average receipts and prices little changed.

Kansas City, Mo., Monday, Oct. 21.—More lookers in proportion to the number of actual buyers of stock and feeding cattle were here last week than any week this fall. The occasion was the American Royal show, in connection with which 75 car load lots of high grade range calves, yearlings and twos were shown, and afterward sold, and about 50 additional car load lots sold at auction by the head.

These cattle went out in all direction, but Illinois and Iowa got most of them. Heifer calves sold at $11 to $13.50 per head, steer calves $12 to $16.75, yearling steers and heifers $18 to $22. Some two year olds sold by the hundred at $150 to $175. In the open market fleshy feeders sold stronger than they have been lately, and choice stockers also sold well, some in each class selling above $1.00. The majority of the useful cattle continue to sell at about the same figures as they have been selling for the past several weeks, at $3.00 to $3.65. Culls and throw outs are draggery at $2.25 to $2.75. Buyers can have the privilege of sorting out exactly the kind of cattle they want at $3.50 to $4.00. The assortment from which to make selections is best from Tuesday to Friday.

The season is nearing its end, as most of the cattle are out of the Flint Hill district in Kansas, and movement from Colorado will not be heavy from this time forward. The Panhandle country has not been able to get to market for three weeks without going in a roundabout way, as railroads are just recovering from the effects of big washouts a few weeks ago in the southwest. Receipts from that territory will be heavy this week and next, but after the middle of November, receipts of range cattle will be confined to scattering shipments.

MURRAYVILLE.

John Brown, of North Carolina, will buy property and become a resident of Murrayville in the near future.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Wright has been very sick for several days. Mrs. A. H. Hite visited Mrs. J. C. Collier Thursday and Friday of this week.

John Sargent sold his Bethel property to Richard Medlock for $150.

H. L. Ethel, of Chapin, was a caller in our village Saturday.

Robert Tilton, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, was interviewing the voters of this precinct Saturday.

Doc Hargrett is attending the world's fair this week.

William Brewer, of Little Rock, Ark., is visiting relatives here this week.

John Fisher and Mrs. H. H. Hite were among the Jacksonville callers Saturday.

Clyde Nash and Orville Brewer were in Jacksonville Sunday visiting the river.

Spencer Reeves, of St. Louis, has located in Chapin.

It is the American farmer who has paid off the large indebtedness to Europe, who has brought back our securities from foreign banks, and who has sent American capital around the world looking for investment.

Dinner Etiquette.

The only articles of food that should be touched with the fingers are bread, biscuits, olives, asparagus, celery, bonbons and small whole fruit.

Don't talk about the food provided. It is bad form.

Never cut your bread with a knife. Break it with your fingers.

Curry is eaten with a spoon and a fork, vegetable entrees with a fork only.

It is a safe rule never to use a knife or spoon if a fork will do.

When meat or poultry is placed before you wait for vegetables, sauces, etc., before beginning. With soup, sweets or anything of that kind that is complete in itself begin at once.

The Bird of Death.

But one specimen of venomous bird is known to the student of ornithological oddities—the Rhipid Noob, or "Bird of Death," a feathered creature indigenous to New Guinea. Persons bitten by the creature are seized with maddening pains, which rapidly extend to every part of the body. Loss of sight, convulsions and lockjaw are symptoms which follow in rapid succession.

What the Baby Said.

Uncle Will had helped Baby Harry for the second time to ice cream and had given him a very small amount. "Now, what do you say?" he asked as he placed the plate before the little one. Harry hesitated for a moment as he noted how much had been given him; then, grasping the dish in both chubby hands, he pushed it gently back toward his uncle and said sweetly: "More!"

Dropping the Peanut.

For a lively indoor sport secure a long necked vase or pitcher, the opening of which is just large enough to admit a peanut. Give each player three peanuts, and have him (or her) circle the room three times at a good pace. Each time in passing the vase the player attempts to drop a peanut into the vase. The boy or girl "flaming" most peanuts wins the point.

Sea Gull Barometers.

The sea gull makes a splendid living barometer. If a covey of sea gulls fly seaward early in the morning, sailors and fishermen know that the day will be fine and the wind fair, but if the birds keep inland, though there be no haze hanging out toward the sea to denote unpleasant weather, interested folk know that the elements will be unfavorable.

Conundrums.

What key is a poisonous one? Whiskey.

What is the noisiest pet in the world? Trumpet.

What does the evening wear? The close of day.

What letter is twice your size? W (double you).

When is love like a chicken bone? When hidden in the breast.

Cocooned Crabs.

In the Coral Islands nature has provided a species of crab with claws and nippers of enormous strength which enable it to pick cocoons, break the shells and dig out the meat. These crabs are over two feet long and live in holes in the earth.

Taking Dolly's Photograph.

Ah, naughty dolly, when I say, "Just turn a little more this way," and then, perhaps, "Now smile," I find you do not even try to mind.

But when I say, "Now, pet, keep still," I'm very, very sure you will.

And there's no need to say to you, "Look pleasant," for you always do.

W. W. Baker, of Plainview, Neb., writes: "My wife suffered from lung trouble for fifteen years. She tried a number of doctors and spent over $1,000 without relief. She became very low and lost all hope. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and thanks to this great remedy it saved her life. She enjoys better health than she has known in ten years." FAIRBANKS COMING Ode Hour in Jacksonville This Afternoon.

The route over which the Republican national committee is sending Senator Fairbanks, the Republican candidate for vice president, on his tour through the central states will bring him through Jacksonville this afternoon.

He will be in the city one hour and the local committee has arranged to have him speak here. A platform will be erected near the Wabash depot in the park south of the building and immediately upon the arrival of the train he will be escorted to the platform.

Senator Fairbanks will arrive in Springfield at 1 o'clock and will spend one hour in that city, where he will speak in the arsenal building. Because of the short time allotted at both cities there will be no parade or other demonstration, the whole time being given Mr. Fairbanks for his address.

This will be a splendid opportunity for Jacksonville people to see and hear the candidate for the second place on the Republican ticket and an effort will be made to extend a hearty welcome to the eminent statesman.

HINRICHSSEN ON WITNESS STAND

Filt Between Attorneys—Jennings Damage Suit Now Being Tried in McLean County.

Bloomington, Oct. 25.—The case of Lora M. Jennings against the C. & A. Railroad company for $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been received at the wreck at Princeton two years ago, winds its way along before Judge Myers. The attorneys in the case are out for blood apparently, and the battle is an interesting one. One of the principal witnesses for the defense Monday was William H. better known as "Buck" Hinrichsen, of Jacksonville, the well known and capable newspaper writer, whose ability in that direction is recognized throughout the country. The fact that he was "literary" man did not prevent Mr. Sterling from giving him a rigid cross-examination and asking him all kinds and conditions of questions.

"Is it not a fact," said Mr. Sterling, "that you were riding on a pass at the time of the accident?" "Yes, sir," "Did you come up here this time on an Alton pass?" "I object," says Mr. Kerrick. "Objection sustained," says the court.

"Your honor, I think that is a proper question," says Mr. Sterling. "Have you got a pass on the Alton, John?" asks Mr. Herrick.

"None of your business," says Mr. Sterling, and then the case of Jennings vs. the C. & A. is resumed.

Mr. Hinrichsen said that he was a passenger on the train that was wrecked, that he was not frightened and that he saw no one in the coaches injured and heard the agent of the company announce that he would carry about a paper for signatures releasing the company.

Mr. Oscar L. Hill, of Jacksonville, agent for the Alton at that point, was on the train and testified to the slight extent of the injuries that the passengers received.

Miss Walton, a teacher in the asylum for the deaf at Jacksonville, was also a passenger in the same car with Mrs. Jennings. She testified that she was making preparations to leave the train when the crash came and that she was not thrown down and that some pictures she had beside her were not damaged, and that the glass over them was not even cracked. At the close of the testimony of Miss Walton court adjourned until to day. It is likely a couple of days yet will be taken up with the case.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION

Prof. Troop lectured on William Makepeace Thackeray — An Able Address.

Dr. J. G. Carter Troop Tuesday evening delivered the second of his lectures on "The Great Novelists of the Nineteenth Century," in the university extension course at the high school, before a large audience. His subject was William Makepeace Thackeray, and as in the former lecture his discourse was exceedingly interesting, abounding in witty anecdotes and splendid presentation of a few of the choice passages of the author's works.

Dr. Troop introduced his subject with a brief estimate of Thackeray, his high position in the ranks of those who stand out as great in the history of prose fiction; of his treatment of the problems of life; of his attitude toward the world, and of his standing as a great literary artist. This was followed by a rapid sketch of his life—born in Calcutta, India, death of his father and return with his widowed mother to England, where he entered school; his early literary work, his studies in Weimar, where he became acquainted with the great Goethe, and his studies of art in Paris. He lost a fortune he inherited upon coming of age, in literary ventures, and later earned the greater portion of his worldly goods from his literary efforts.

His work for Fraser's magazine fairly started him on his literary career. His "Yellowplush Papers," "Catherine Hayes" and "Barry Lyndon" established his claim to recognition in the literary world. His contributions to Punch further established his fame, and soon became famous.

"Vanity Fair" began to appear in monthly numbers in 1846 and was slow to take hold. The speaker took the characters of the story one at a time, showing the power with which they were drawn, and in a dramatic manner gave the scene between Rawdon and Lord Steyn and Becky, which he characterized as one of the greatest in all fiction.

"Pendennis," the second of Thackeray's great novels, was passed over with a few comprehensive remarks. The novel was Thackeray's "David Copperfield" to a certain extent, but did by no means exhibit the biography of his life as "David Copperfield" did that of Dickens. In this work the author became less objective—drew more from his own heart.

The "Beatrice" of "Henry Esmond," Dr. Troop offered as the one complete woman of fiction, the greatest female character in the history of all literature. In this work Thackeray showed remarkable assimilation of the eighteenth century period. His story was exactly as it might have been written by Chaucer or Fielding.

In 1855 "The Newcomes" appeared, a transcript of the real life of to day, with its faults, follies and hypocrisies. The real hero of the novel, Colonel Newcome, was characterized as the noblest in literature—a counterpart of Fielding's "Allworthy"—a picture of human imperfections inexpressibly touching. The speaker gave a very feeling production of the closing moments of the hero's life, in which his simplicity of character was made so manifest.

Thackeray's style alone would give him immortality. His work was at times absolutely faultless. In addition to his prose, he wrote some exquisite verse in a peculiar style—half serious and half comical. As a sample of this, Dr. Troop recited a portion of "The White Squall." He also told of his successful lecturing tours, on one of which he came to this country and was warmly greeted by immense audiences, some of which comprised the most eminent men of the country. They were in two sets, "The English Humorists" and "The Four Georges," both of which were delivered in this country.

The speaker concluded with a letter written by Thackeray, which showed at its best the great and noble character of the man.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

An Amusing Game Which Tests the Sense of Hearing.

Provide a large and small bell, a whistle, a glass tumbler, tin cup, slate, key, pencil, etc. Let your party see what objects are struck and notice the sounds of each. After striking lightly various objects, as the table, chair, stove pipe, bell, tumbler, cup, etc., two or three times request your friends to close their eyes and then tell by its sound what object is struck.

Change the position of some of the objects before striking them and let the listeners discern the change from sound alone.

Call four or five aside and let each read figures or spell words from a book while the eyes of the others are closed and request them to tell which one read by the sound of the voice.

Fun Alive.

Fun alive is a game played by any number of persons with eight large cards, called game cards, and forty smaller forfeit cards. The game cards are all blank except one, called the catch card, on which the words "Fun Alive" are printed in large letters. On each of the forfeit cards a forfeit is printed. The forfeit cards are spread, face downward, in the middle of the table, and the game is begun by one player taking the game cards, shuffling them and presenting them to his left hand neighbor, who draws one. If it be the catch card he must at once draw a forfeit and do as it directs. Then the player who draws shuffles the game cards and presents them to his left hand neighbor and so on. When a player draws a blank card he takes no forfeit card, and the next one draws at once. The game continues thus as long as the players choose.
